

Fully implement the
Truth and Reconciliation Commission
Calls to Action!

Date:

Dear:

For generations, residential school Survivors and their families have bravely shared the truth behind Canada's Indian Residential School System. The Truth and Reconciliation Commission listened to these truths and created a roadmap to reconciliation in the form of 94 Calls to Action to fix the legacy of the residential school system. Canada has a long history of knowing about injustices faced by First Nations, Métis, and Inuit children and their families and choosing not to act. This is just one of many instances. Eight years after the Truth and Reconciliation Commission released the Calls to Action, only thirteen of them have been completed.

In honour of Orange Shirt Day and the National Day for Truth and Reconciliation, I am writing to urge the Government of Canada to fully implement the Truth and Reconciliation Commission Calls to Action so First Nations, Métis, and Inuit children and families have equitable opportunities to grow up safely at home and feel proud.

Sincerely,
